AP US HISTORY HUMANITIES

- Meets high school graduation requirement for US History
- Meets the UC/CSU subject area "A" (A-G) requirement

General Information

Description

AP US History Humanities is similar to APUSH in that it focuses on developing students' abilities to think conceptually about U.S. History from approximately 1491 to the present and apply historical thinking skills as they learn about the past (using College Board Guidelines). Seven themes of equal importance – identity; peopling; politics and power; work, exchange, and technology; America in the world; environment and geography; and ideas, beliefs, and culture – provide areas of historical inquiry for investigation throughout the course. These require students to reason historically about continuity and change over time and make comparisons among various historical developments in different times and places.

Students will be held responsible for all information made available to them through text, supplemental reading and writing assignments, teacher's lectures and notes, video, student presentations, etc. Additionally, students enrolled in Humanities will be exposed to a more explicit cross-curricular content between APUSH Humanities and AP English Language. The course includes multiple cross-curricular and joint projects (some with a concurrent grade in English and History) throughout the school year that allow students to demonstrate and enhance their use of multiple intelligences. Regular time will also be given to allow for discussion of literature in its historical context with focus on student interpretations and connections. Notably, Humanities creates a community or family environment, since the same group of students will share two classes that are so intrinsically connected.

Expectations and Goals

This is a very rigorous course taught at a college level and pace. There are no specific prerequisites for Humanities, although it is essential that students are prepared, mature, organized, motivated and have a strong interest in both history and literature. Students should have advanced skills in reading comprehension and analysis as it is expected that students can read and comprehend material from a college level textbook on their own. The AP class is taught at a much faster pace, with more depth, than college prep history and with more rigorous expectations and assessments than previous classes taken. Assessments in this course consist of timed multiple choice exams and extensive essay writing. Students will be expected to take cumulative exams that ultimately cover 40 chapters of material. Students enrolled in AP US History Humanities are expected to take the AP exam.

Estimated Homework

1-2 hours nightly. It is important to note that this serves as an estimate of the nightly average homework load. Homework completion time will vary depending on the nature of the assignment and the abilities and work habits of the student.

Course information:

The AP U.S. History course is structured around themes and concepts in nine different chronological periods from approximately 1491 to the present:

- Period 1: 1491-1607
- Period 2: 1607-1754
- Period 3: 1754-1800
- Period 4: 1800-1848
- Period 5: 1844-1877
- Period 6: 1865-1898
- Period 7: 1890-1945
- Period 8: 1945-1980
- Period 9: 1980-Present

Within each period, key concepts organize and prioritize historical developments. Themes allow students to make connections and identify patterns and trends over time.

Historical Thinking Skills

The historical thinking skills provide opportunities for students to learn to think like historians, most notably to analyze evidence about the past and to create persuasive historical arguments. Focusing on these practices enables teachers to create learning opportunities for students that emphasize the conceptual and interpretive nature of history. Skill types and examples for each are listed below.

Chronological Reasoning

- Compare causes and/or effects, including between short-term and long-term effects
- Analyze and evaluate historical patterns of continuity and change over time
- Connect patterns of continuity and change over time to larger historical processes or themes
- Analyze and evaluate competing models of periodization of world history

Comparison and Contextualization

- Compare related historical developments and processes across place, time, and/or different societies, or within one society
- Explain and evaluate multiple and differing perspectives on a given historical phenomenon
- Explain and evaluate ways in which specific historical phenomena, events, or processes connect to broader regional, national, or global processes occurring at the same time

Crafting Historical Arguments from Historical Evidence

- Analyze commonly accepted historical arguments and explain how an argument has been constructed from historical evidence
- Construct convincing interpretations through analysis of disparate, relevant historical evidence
- Evaluate and synthesize conflicting historical evidence to construct persuasive historical arguments
- Analyze features of historical evidence such as audience, purpose, point of view, format, argument, limitations, and context germane to the evidence considered
- Based on analysis and evaluation of historical evidence, make supportable inferences and draw appropriate conclusions

Historical Interpretation and Synthesis

- Analyze diverse historical interpretations
- Evaluate how historians' perspectives influence their interpretations and how models of historical interpretation change over time
- Draw appropriately on ideas and methods from different fields of inquiry or disciplines
- Apply insights about the past to other historical contexts or circumstances, including the present

AP United States History Exam Structure

AP U.S. HISTORY EXAM: 3 HOURS 15 MINUTES
